January 22, 2016

Greetings to all 3B families!

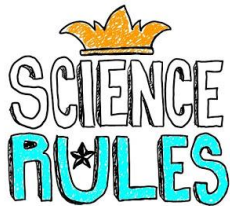

This week has been short but productive! First I'd like to extend great appreciation to all of you who have monitored your child's reading progress this year. I have completed the reading assessments, and there is great progress!! The students that are beginning to read more each night and have made it a goal to read every night, their progress shows!! Most are either at or well above grade level!! Good work to all!

Math is focusing on math fact fluency, specifically multiplication. Students are making flashcards for this work as they continue with addition and subtraction with XTRA Math.

Students are using their data to make an evidence-based prediction about the Mystery Powders. There are many good details that they are sharing and analyzing for this work.

The BIG Event has been the Diversity presentations. We will finish this work today and the presentations have been wonderful!! The props are delightful to see and have the students explain both the props and why their person represents diversity. I will share photos when all have presented.

Students chose a president to research next week. This is part of the celebration of Presidents' Day and they will be presenting their information at the grades 3-5 Community Meeting on February 26 if you would like to join us!!

Have a great weekend, and next week we'll be back to spelling, cursive and the "third grade routine!"
